RECORDING MEMORIES AND STAYING INVOLVED

Volunteers often return home a bit overwhelmed, yet energized and eager to share stories with families, friends, clubs, groups, and other community members. Following are some ideas of things you can do while in Haiti, and when you return, to best share your unique experience.

JOURNAL

Bring a journal and jot down notes each day to record your favorite memories. Following are some ideas to record:

- Favorite story.
- Most memorable experience with a child/children and/or school.
- Greatest challenge.
- Most rewarding moment of the day(s).
- Most delicious food/beverage.
- Greatest appreciation.
- Favorite local saying.

PHOTOS/VIDEOS

Photos and video can capture memories beyond words. There are so many beautiful children and families, not to mention the amazing scenery.

Please remember to be respectful when taking photos or recording any video. If in doubt, request permission or check with your PWW team prior to taking photo(s) or shooting video scenes.

HOW TO SHARE WHEN YOU RETURN

Your stories are vitally important to Pure Water, and sharing them directly supports the work we do both in the US and Haiti. Please consider sharing your favorite Haiti memories, photos and video with us in the following ways:

- Facebook/Instagram. Post photos to your Facebook/Instagram pages and ours. "Like" Pure Water for the World on Facebook and follow us on Instagram to stay connected long after you return home.
- PWW Newsletter. Love to write? Share your favorite story for publication in a PWW newsletter. Send your favorite photo(s) to go along with the story.
- Water-Blogged. Another great venue for submitting your favorite stories and photos. We welcome trip volunteers as guest writers for our blog.
- Fundraising. Want to make your impact by raising money to bring clean water to more families in Haiti? Visit the PWW website to learn about different ways you can personally raise funds to contribute directly to the families in Haiti. Don't see a fundraiser for you? Call us and we'll get creative together!

THANK YOU!
